THE STEVENS BILL MODIFIED.

THE Stevens bill, introduced in the preceding Congress by R. B. Stevens of New Hampshire and re-introduced by William A. Ayres of Kansas, has now been replaced by a superseding measure prepared by the proponents of the old bill and introduced on January 21 by Representative D. V. Stephens of Nebraska. We give the full text of the modified measure elsewhere, but it should be stated that the measure, although improved, is not yet perfected to the satisfaction of its advocates and will doubtless have considerable further shaping in committee as the result of suggestions from friends of the bill as well as of criticisms from its opponents.

The principle of the bill is of the utmost importance to the book-trade and as a consequence the measure has called forth the active support of almost all publishers—there being but two noteworthy exceptions—and of the retail trade in general. It has been taken for granted as a matter of course that books were included in the bill. Nevertheless, the phraseology of the bill has raised questions whether books can be defined as articles of "trade mark or special brand," and whether, furthermore, if a title or copyright identifies them under either category, each book must be individually registered in conformity with the provisions of the bill, an irksome imposition which would be the book publisher's peculiar difficulty. It has been suggested that the publisher might register his imprint or his scale of prices for definite classes of books, but this is by no means clear. There should obviously be no lack of definite understanding on these points.

The library opposition to the original bill has been met by a concession which introduces the phraseology of the tariff bill permitting free importation of books, to permit special prices or special discounts to libraries and societies. As a special discount to libraries was recognized under the net price system, there will probably be little if any opposition by the book-trade to this concession, on which librarians, as quasi-wholesale bookbuyers shaping their orders in such wise as to give least work to the book dealer, naturally insist.

A provision for "seasonal disposal sales" has been made a new feature of the bill, doubtless as a concession to department stores, but its terms are so sweeping and so indefinite as seriously to offset the general effectiveness of this feature. Happily this clause has been made permissive and not mandatory and the limitations of such sales may perhaps be more clearly defined in the contracts of sale. If a publisher's prices, under this clause, should be cut, for example, for a month in the holiday season and another month in the spring, price maintenance would be almost impossible. In this, as in cognate clauses, there is an alternative provision by which the vendor may recover his books on payment of the price paid by the vendee. But it should be noted, as another difficulty on which amendatory correction is needed, that when the sale has been made by the publisher through a jobber the publisher would be apparently obliged, if he is to withdraw them from bargain counters or forced sale, to pay for his books more than he got for them.

There is one important safeguard which should certainly be made part of the bill before it becomes law. It is notorious that the statute of Anne, 1710, which confessedly had no intent of abrogating common law rights, actually swept away all such rights, as interpreted by a divided bench in the ruling and famous case of Donaldson v. Becket in 1774, and by this precedent confined all copyright protection of public works thereafter to statutory provision. In the present case, the courts have never decided, or indeed indicated, that an individual publisher has not the right to control the re-sale of his books by a direct contract not involving combination, and there may be serious danger that this residual and fundamental right might be taken away by a carelessly drawn law, as was the case two centuries ago in the field of copyright. In the Copyright Code of 1909, care was taken to provide in Section II that so far as unpublished works are concerned, the statute should not deprive the author of an unpublished work of his property rights under common law, and the phraseology of this Code or its equivalent should be made part of the Stevens bill before its passage.

The measure will attract so much public interest and attention and involve so much discussion and controversy, that doubtless many hearings will be necessary to re-shape it. It is to be hoped, however, that a bill will finally emerge which will be both clear in terms and just to all concerned, one permitting price maintenance without inviting abuse.

TEXT OF MODIFIED STEVENS BILL.

THE Stevens bill,* introduced into this session of Congress in its original form by Representative Ayres, was reintroduced on January 21 by Representative Stephens, of Nebraska, in the following modified form. New matter is in italics and old matter excluded in the new bill is in brackets.

A BILL

[To prevent discrimination in prices and to provide for publicity of prices to dealers and to the public.]

To protect the public against dishonest advertising and false pretenses in merchandising.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in any contract for the sale of articles of commerce to any dealer, wholesale or retail, by any grower, producer, manufacturer, or owner thereof, under trade-mark or special brand, hereinafter referred to as the "vendor," it shall be lawful for such vendor, whenever the contract constitutes a transaction of commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, or in any Territory of the United States, or in the District of Columbia, or between any such Territory or Territories and any States or the District of Columbia, or with a foreign nation or nations, or between the district of Columbia and any State or States or a foreign nation or nations, to prescribe the [sole] uniform prices and manner of settlement at which the different qualities and quantities of each article covered by such contract may be resold: Provided, that the following conditions are complied with:

(a) Such vendor shall not have any monopoly or control of the market for articles belonging to the same general class of merchandise as such article or articles of commerce as shall be covered by such contract of sale; nor shall such vendor be a party to any agreement, combination, or understanding with any competitor in the production, manufacture, or sale of any merchandise in the same general class in regard to the price at which the same shall be sold either to dealers at wholesale or retail or to the public.

[(b) Such vendor shall affix a notice to each article of commerce or to each carton, package, or other receptacle inclosing an article of commerce covered by such contract of sale stating the price prescribed by the vendor at the time of the delivery of said article as the uniform price of sale of such article to the public and the name and address of such vendor, and bearing the said trade-mark or special brand of such vendor. Such article or articles of commerce covered thereby shall not be resold except with such notice affixed thereto or to the cartons, packages, or other receptacles inclosing the same.]

[c] (b) Such vendor shall file [in the Bureau of Corporations] at the office of the Federal Trade Commission a statement setting forth the trade-mark or special brand owned or claimed by such vendor in respect of such article or articles of commerce to be covered by such contract of sale, and also, from time to time, as the same may be adopted or modified, a schedule setting forth the uniform price of sale thereof to dealers at wholesale, and the uniform price of sale thereof to dealers at retail from whatsoever source acquired and the uniform price of sale thereof to the public, and upon filing such statement such vendor shall pay to the [Commissioner of Corporations] Federal Trade Commission a registration fee of $10. Prices set forth in such schedule and made in any contract pursuant to the provisions of this act shall be uniform to all dealers in like circumstances, differing only as to grade, quality or quantity of such articles sold, point of delivery and manner of settlement, all of which differences shall be set forth in such schedule; [The price to the vendee under any such contract shall be one of such uniform prices to wholesale and to retail dealers according as such vendee shall be a dealer at wholesale or a dealer at retail,] and there shall be no discrimination in favor of any vendee by the allowance of a discount, rebate or commission for any cause or by grant of any special concession or [allowance or by the payment of any rebate or commission or] by any other device whatsoever.

(c) Such contracts for the sale of such article or articles of commerce may provide for seasonal disposal sales, twice yearly at appropriate times, by dealers at retail, during which periods duly set forth in such statement or in such schedule of prices as shall be filed by such vendor, such dealers at retail may sell such article or articles of commerce for a price other than the uniform price as set forth in the schedule provided in the preceding paragraph (b): Provided, That such article or articles of commerce shall have first been offered to the vendor, by such dealer at retail, by written offer, at the price paid for the same by such dealer, and that such vendor, not less than thirty days prior to the date set forth for the next seasonal disposal sale, after reasonable opportunity to inspect such article or articles, shall have refused or neglected to accept such offer.

(d) Any article of commerce or any carton, package, or other receptacle inclosing an article or articles of commerce covered by such contract and in possession of a dealer may be sold for a price other than the uniform price for resale by such dealer for such quality and quantity as set forth in the schedule provided in the [next] preceding paragraph b [c]. First, if such dealer shall cease to do business and the sale is made in the course of winding up the business of such dealer, or if such dealer shall have become bankrupt, or a receiver of the business of such dealer shall have been appointed, provided that such article or articles of commerce shall have first been offered to the vendor thereof by such dealer or the legal representative of such dealer by written offer at the price paid for the same by such dealer, and that such vendor, after reasonable opportunity to inspect such article or articles, shall have refused or neglected to accept such offer, or, second, if such article of commerce or contents of such carton, package, or other receptacle shall have become damaged, deteriorated, or soiled: Provided, That such damaged, deteriorated, or soiled article shall have first been offered to the vendor by such dealer by written offer, at the price paid for the same by such dealer, or, at the option of such vendor, in exchange for similar articles not damaged, deteriorated or soiled, and that such vendor, after reasonable opportunity to inspect such article or articles, shall have refused or neglected to accept such offer, and that such damaged, deteriorated, or soiled article shall thereafter only be offered for sale by such dealer with prominent notice to the purchaser that such article is damaged, deteriorated, or soiled, and that the price thereof is reduced because of such damage.

The provisions of this act shall not apply in cases of sales of such article or articles of commerce to the United States, or in cases of sales of such articles to any state or public library, or to any society or institution incorporated or established solely for religious, philosophical, educational, medical, scientific or literary purposes, made in good faith for use thereof by such society or institution.

THE LIBRARIES AND THE STEVENS BILL.

In accordance with the resolutions of the Council of the American Library Association, the book buying committee of the Association prepared a circular to libraries, urging the necessity of joint action to secure an amendment to the Stevens bill, which would exempt libraries from the provisions of the bill. The committee also had in view other action looking toward the same end. A conference was arranged with Mr. Whittier of the American Fair Trade League, which seems to be the organization energetically backing price maintenance legislation. Mr. Whittier informed the committee that a new bill was about to be introduced which would replace the old Stevens-Ayres bill. He offered his co-operation in obtaining a clause in the bill exempting libraries. The new bill was introduced by Representative Stephens of Nebraska, January 21st, (H. R. No. 9671.) The bill contains the following clause:

"The provisions of this act shall not apply in cases of sales of such article or articles of commerce to the United States, or in cases of sales of such articles to any state or public library, or to any society or institution incorporated or established solely for religious, philosophical, educational, medical, scientific or literary purposes, made in good faith for use thereof by such society or institution."

It would appear that all objections on the part of librarians, as such, to the old bill are obviated by the introduction of the new bill, and that no further action on the part of libraries and library organizations will be necessary if the second section is retained.

The clause reinforces the principle laid down in the tariff law that libraries which are supported by public taxation for educational purposes, and which are practically wholesale buyers, should not be on the same plane as the private individual.

The Book Buying Committee is grateful for the hearty co-operation it has received from librarians in all parts of the country. The progress of the bill, of course, will be carefully watched.

BROOKLYN'S "CONSULTING BOOK DEALER" DESCRIBES HER NEW PROFESSION.

"CONSULTING BOOK DEALER" Miss Throop calls herself on her letterhead, and any one who sees her inviting "offices" in the Hotel Bossert in Brooklyn will realize that here is something new in bookselling, something to which publishers should be keenly alive. It all began with Earl Barnes' article last summer in the Atlantic Monthly on "Bookselling—a New Profession for Women," an article greeted at the time with scepticism by a few publishers, but with decided enthusiasm by others. The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY reprinted Mr. Barnes' article shortly after its appearance, with the editorial comment that Mr. Barnes' paper might "start something" in this field which had been hitherto overlooked by the book trade. This editorial was followed later by another on "The College Woman and the Book-Stand." When Miss Throop decided, just before Christmas, to hang out her shingle as a Consulting Book Dealer, the publishers were more than willing to meet her half-way.

Miss Throop's location in the Hotel Bossert, the largest hotel in Brooklyn, and in the center of Brooklyn Heights, the old, well-to-do residence section of the city, is peculiarly fortunate.

We have received from her the following interesting account of her work:

BROOKLYN, January 26, 1916.

Editor THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

Your kind inquiry as to my present work is quite in line with what has been rather a surprising part of it to me—the pronounced and cordial interest shown by the trade in my modest undertaking. Even though it may be merely business acumen for the publishers to welcome a new outlet for their wares, it displays that acumen in a very agreeable form.

Those of your readers who have seen my circular or the quotations from it printed in several magazines, will recall the fact that I am following in part the advice of Mr. Earl Barnes as given in his article in the August Atlantic. But I am giving perhaps unusual emphasis to a side of bookselling known to every intelligent bookman as desirable, if not necessary—the advisory side. All the delicious stories of customers' errors in ordering, from "Steven Charles Gardner's Verses" to "Those Twins, by Arnold Bennett," witness to the need. I suppose I was rather attracted to this kind of work from my experience as a teacher of literature and art history. Both as vice-principal of a large school for girls and then as dean of women in a co-educational college, I had long been in a position to advise in the selection of books of all sorts, not only for children and young people, but for their parents and other relatives. So when I thought of leaving teaching for business it seemed the simplest thing to step into a trade or profession or mixture of the two where I could reap financial profit from what I had already practised freely and without price.

Perhaps it is a bit early to affirm that success has justified my decision. But certainly my first two months have been busy ones, and I am consequently contented with the way things are going. I have a delightful situation in a good part of Brooklyn, daylight all day and an attractive view; two pleasant rooms in the Hotel Bossert—the largest in Brooklyn—furnished in soft colors, with comfortable chairs beside the long velvet-covered tables on which the books are temptingly spread. Spread is just the word. They are not built up in terrifying castellation which the earnest seeker would tremble to disturb. Not more than three copies of any book appear, and though I cannot say that I have reached the point of having all the best books, according to their publishers, at least all that I have are of the best. You see, since I wish to carry only a selected stock, that selection must be a sort of visible advice, gently and agreeably presented.

The plan seems to work well. For, influenced by comfort and unoppressed by the bewilderment of too much to look at, many persons have said, "I have never seen such lovely books anywhere! You seem to have just the things I want." All of which is very cheering to a beginner, even though conscience forces me to say in deprecatory hurry that probably the same books are in all the other shops. Perhaps I do not say it especially loud.

It has been great fun to sell the beautiful children's books, both the new ones and the old favorites in their fine rejuvenated forms. Sometimes bewitching little customers are allowed to come here without any grown-ups, and then it is a delight to let them perch on the arms of the bookdealer's chair while that usually dignified person reads scraps of Lear's "Nonsense" or "Uncle Remus" or the "Cheerful Cats," beloved of her own childhood.

Another interesting part of my work has been in correspondence, bringing me into touch with booklovers in many far-away cities and towns.

I am taking a great deal of your space to say what, after all, may not seem very new to your readers. The only possibly new thing about it is, I suppose, the title I have assumed; the work it represents has always been done, more or less, in the bookstores of the better class. Indeed, the claim it makes is far from arrogant, but most friendly in spirit. And I hope that a consulting service, while it rather emphasizes one's duty to the customer, may be no less beneficial to the publisher in bringing to notice in an authoritative and personal manner books that might not otherwise receive the attention they deserve.

SUZANNE E. THROOP.

"AMERICAN LITERATURE IN A BAD WAY," SAYS HENRY HOLT.

"EVERYONE agrees that our literature is in a bad way," said Henry Holt in an interview published recently in the New York Times Book Review. "The periodicals are sending it to the dogs. And this degeneration must be largely attributed to the exploitation of names, with its resultant condition of overworking the authors who have names.

"Authors get more money for the serial rights to their work than for the book rights. And so, instead of doing their biggest and finest work, they introduce into their novels climaxes every so often, for purposes of publication in installments. That is probably the reason why they run short of climaxes before the end, where the best climax ought to be."

"Would anonymity remedy matters?" I asked.

"Of course it would," said Mr. Holt, decidedly. "If names were not exploited, fellows wouldn't be tempted to overwork the way they do. We publishers never have a new one make a success without the periodicals finding out about it, and, for a short time, paying him perfectly Aladdin-like prices. New authors believe that these prices will last forever, and get into ways of spending money which they cannot give up when they are no longer sensational and high-priced novelties.

"Their books may increase in circulation very considerably, while their availability as novelists, of course, diminishes. Just as soon as a new author makes a success the periodicals are after him, like women after a new fashion.

"The natural result of this is the overworking of the authors. Under the literary agency system, I have known unwritten books to be engaged two or three deep, and payments made on account of them.

"But what makes this magazine evil seem even harder to bear is the fact that the government encourages it so! An article in The Unpopular Review, nearly two years ago, pointed out that the cent-per-pound rate which is charged for carrying periodicals through the mails has stimulated to an extraordinary extent the publication of them, so that there are now published in the United States annually over seven and one-half billion copies of periodicals, exclusive of newspapers, and of this quantity more than one-half gets distribution through the mails. We publish few books as compared with other civilized nations, but we issue more periodicals than all other nations put together. We publish sixty per cent of the periodical literature, so to call it, of the entire world.

"In the United States we publish about 10,000 books a year. Switzerland, which is scarcely one-eighteenth the size of the State of Texas, annually publishes ten times as many books per million inhabitants as we do. Russia, which many of us consider to be a benighted country, publishes two and three-quarters times as many books as we do, and has a population only one and two-thirds times larger.

"The number of retail booksellers is rapidly decreasing. A generation ago, when the population of the United States was a little less than half what it is to-day, we had between 3000 and 4000 booksellers. Now we have less than 1500 booksellers, and this number grows smaller every year. But we have nearly 100,000 news-stands!

"The government has deliberately favored the periodical publishers, and the book publishers have suffered. The old postal rate of 3 cents a pound for magazines and 2 cents a pound for newspapers was lowered in 1885 to 1 cent per pound for newspapers and magazines alike.

"It was natural that this should result in a tremendous development of the periodical business. For the fifteen years before those statistics were collected new periodicals had begun their career in the United States at the rate of more than ten a day for every day, Sundays and holidays included. There were issued in the United States every year from one-half to three-quarters as many copies of periodicals as have ever been published in the first editions of all books ever printed by all the nations of the world!

"It cannot be expected that literature will thrive under these conditions. The amount of books published will continue to grow smaller year by year and the number of sensational magazines will continue to increase, names will be exploited and authors overworked, spending their time grinding out installments of serials at a higher rate of speed when they might be making books that will be contributions to literature. The periodical will continue to send literature to the dogs so long as the government encourages the periodical publishers and discourages the book publishers."

S. C. BRITTON ORGANIZES NEW PUBLISHING HOUSE.

SUMNER C. BRITTON, one of the founders of the Reilly & Britton Co., of Chicago, and still a large stockholder in that concern, has recently organized under Charter of the State of New York, the Britton Publishing Company, with headquarters in New York City.

The new company will commence operations on April 1st, with Mr. Britton as president.

Highly important in connection with this announcement is the fact that, since the new company was organized, Frederick T. J. Nunan has become a stockholder, and has accepted the vice-presidency of the corporation. Under the circumstances, it is possible that a change in the corporate name of the company may be made so as to include that of Mr. Nunan. Mr. Nunan is well known to the trade as a former traveler for The Page Co.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE AND LORD & TAYLOR TO OPEN UNIQUE BOOK-STORE.

ABOUT March 1 a bookshop will be opened in the Lord & Taylor store at 38th Street and Fifth Avenue, New York City, under the management of Doubleday, Page & Co., which, according to the announcement of the two houses instituting this new experiment in bookselling, will be unique in every feature. The store is to be laid out like a private library of a fine old country house, with massive tables, comfortable chairs, heavily shaded reading lamps and every other facility for comfortable book browsing. It will combine the comfort and coziness of a private library and the card-index efficiency of a big public library, with the most approved methods of placing books before the public for sale.

"One feature of our experiment interests me very much," said F. N. Doubleday in commenting upon the new move. "After spending a good deal of time visiting bookstores in various parts of the country, I have been struck by the fact that the floors of most bookstores are used for tables, long or short, covering practically all the floor space, on which are piled books in great quantities. The customer walks in the aisles of these counters, examines and selects his books, standing on his feet. I have watched many tired readers going over books in this uncomfortable position. This custom is, of course, not universal; but most books, I claim, are bought standing, and this, of course, may be the best way.

"But we are going to try to keep our floor comparatively open for selling space. There will be a big library table in the middle of our bookshop—and it will not be large, by the way, but we hope cozy. There will be other tables and many comfortable chairs. In this way we hope to gain attention to hundreds of individual books which will be instantly replaced by fresh copies as soon as sold.

"We see no gain in carrying all our stock in the most conspicuous place in the middle of the floor; most of the books, except some 20,000 volumes on the shelves about the room, will be in a less useful but convenient space nearby. We shall simplify our problem somewhat by eliminating what we regard as the least necessary classes of books—books which are carried in large stores devoted exclusively to such books, like medical, technical, rare and scarce, second-hand books, and books in foreign languages.

"As nearly as we are able to plan at the moment, there will be an expert in charge of each of the various departments, such as recent fiction, belles lettres and verse, biography, travel, economics, etc. We shall announce the name of the head of each department, to help the visitor to know who is who. All this is nothing new, but we are going to try to keep these departments separate and up to the moment. In addition, there will be a trained librarian, whose business it will be not to sell books, but to answer the questions that you go to a library to find out. We shall call it the service desk, and the librarian will have at hand all the bibliographical tools of her trade and will supplement the information which the department heads usually give. Another new effort will be made in a magazine expert—a person who knows something more than the names and prices of current magazines. He is expected to know the character and individuality of all the magazines and what they are printing, and with the help of a cumulative index, what, where and when separate articles or groups of articles were published.

"There exists in the building a new Chickering Hall, a reincarnation, so to speak, of the old Chickering Hall where so many delightful musical and literary events took place in the old days at 18th Street and Fifth Avenue. In this charming little theater, which contains spacious seats for 299 people, the bookshop plans to give many interesting and, we even hope, unique entertainments. For instance, we shall have a Kipling Day, a Stevenson Day, an O. Henry Day, a Conrad Day, a Selma Lagerlöf Day, a Drama League Day, a Garden Book Day, etc., when speakers of reputation will read from and tell about these and other distinguished authors, showing portraits on the screen, places made famous by the books, the homes of the authors, with letters and manuscripts which will bring home to the reader the real personality of his favorite writers.

"I am most anxious to make it clear that this is not an attempt to supersede the regular bookstore; our main endeavor will be to attract the attention of people who are buying other things to form the habit of buying books.

"Conditions change with the times," said Mr. Doubleday, in summing up the plan. "We do not deplore conditions. We meet new conditions with new methods, and this is an effort to test a new method in placing books before the public. We have the courage of ignorance which may, or may not, be an advantage; we hope to try out some new ideas which, perhaps, if we had more experience, we would never have the zeal to try."

THE AMERICAN SHORT STORY OUTPUT OF 1915.

"In reaffirming this year the significant position of the American short story as compared with the English short story, I am more impressed than ever with the leadership manifest by American artists in this literary form," says Edward J. O'Brien in his review of the short stories of 1915 in the Boston Transcript.

"During the past year I have read over two thousand American short stories in a critical spirit, and they have made me lastingly hopeful of our literary future. A spirit of change is acting on our literature. There is a fresh living current in the air.

"As the most adequate means to my end, I have taken each short story that I have considered by itself, and examined it impartially. I have done my best to surrender myself to the writer's point of view, and granting his choice of material and interpretation of it in terms of life, have sought to test it by the double standard of substance and form.

"Of the 2200 short stories which I examined thoroughly in my study of forty-six periodicals, I find that 683 stories possessed distinction, 269 stories possessed high distinction, and 91 stories were of more or less permanent literary value."

In order of precedence, based on the number of new stories of distinctive merit published during 1915, the eighteen magazines publishing over twenty-five short stories during the year rank as follows:

1. Harper's Monthly	56
2. Collier's Weekly and Illustrated Sunday Magazine (excluding 13 reprints)	46
3. Scribner's Magazine	37
4. Lippincott's Magazine and McBride's Magazine	36
5. Century Magazine	32
6. Saturday Evening Post	29
7. Metropolitan	24
8. Every Week	23
9. American Magazine	22
10. McClure's Magazine	22
11. The Bellman	20
12. Pictorial Review	15
13. Sunset Magazine	13
14. Everybody's Magazine	13
15. Associated Sunday Magazines (Jan.-May, excluding stories in Every Week, q. v.)	9
16. Ladies' Home Journal	8
17. Delineator	7

Mr. O'Brien picks ninety-one short stories for the "Honor Roll," of which Katharine Fullerton Gerould has contributed five stories, Wilbur Daniel Steele four stories, Lord Dunsany, Ben Hecht and Fannie Hurst three stories each, and Lincoln Colcord, Rupert Hughes, Walter J. Mullenburg, Seumas O'Brien and Robert W. Sneddon two stories each.

The five best stories of the year are, in his opinion:

Zelig. By Benjamin Rosenblatt. The Bellman

Ultima Thule. By John Galsworthy. The Delineator.

The Friends. By Stacy Aumonier. The Century.

Jeanne the Maid. By Gordon Arthur Smith. Scribner's.

The Weaver Who Clad the Summer. By

H. M. Lyon. Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

"One new periodical and one new short story writer claim unique attention this year for their recent achievement and abundant future promise," says Mr. O'Brien. "A year ago, a slender little monthly magazine entitled The Midland was first issued in Iowa City. It attracted very little attention, and in the course of the year published but nine short stories. It has been my pleasure and wonder to find in these nine stories the most vital interpretation in fiction of our national life that many years have been able to show.

"One new short story writer has appeared this year whose five published stories open a new field to fiction, and have a human richness of feeling and imagination rare in our oversophisticated literature. I refer to the fables of Seumas O'Brien. At first one is struck with their utter absence of form, and then one realizes that this is a conscious art that wanders truant over life and imagination. In Seumas O'Brien I believe that America has found a new humorist of popular sympathies, a rare observer and philosopher whose very absurdities have a persuasive philosophy of their own."

BEST SELLING BOOKS.

According to the Bookman's lists, the six books (fiction) which sold best in the order of demand during December were:

1. Michael O'Halloran. Stratton-Porter. (Doubleday, Page.) $1.35..... 219
2. Dear Enemy. Webster. (Century Co.) $1.30..... 192
3. Felix O'Day. Smith. (Scribner.) $1.35..... 161

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' COPYRIGHT LEAGUE HONORS MEMORY OF F. H. DODD.

THE Executive Committee of the American Publishers' Copyright League, in which committee the late Frank H. Dodd had through a long series of years rendered valuable service, recently adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved: That through the death of Frank H. Dodd, The Publishers' Copyright League has lost a much valued member who had won the respect and the affectionate regard of all his associates.

Mr. Dodd had rendered active and capable service in the long contest in behalf of an equitable recognition of literary property; and he had also given patient and persistent labor to the work of furthering the relations with each other and with the community, of the publishers and of the members of the Book Trade generally. With full measure of public spirit, he had given valuable co-operation also to a number of undertakings planned for the welfare of our city. The men who had the privilege of being associated with Mr. Dodd in these several undertakings came to realize the soundness of his judgment, his fairness of mind, his high ideals and his integrity of purpose and of action. His death constitutes a serious loss to his profession and to the community.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and to the partners of our departed friend.

COMMUNICATIONS.

SALE OF REVIEW COPIES UNFAIR TO BOOKSELLERS.

New Haven, Conn., January 8, 1916.

Editor the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

If we were always able to act upon the impulse of the moment, we should very frequently write to express our interest in, and approval of, particular editorials of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. It is now some weeks since the subject of the abuses of review copies of new books was touched upon in one of these editorials but the subject has not been dismissed from our mind since.

All that was said was true, and much might have been added. The local bookseller is the one who suffers most from this exasperating evil. Frequently an expensive book, of which only a few copies can be sold under the best conditions, is sent to a local newspaper, and after a hasty and inadequate "review" is sold at a nominal price to a party who would naturally be a customer of the local bookstore; and such book-buyers get the impression that it is foolish and unnecessary for them to pay market prices for their books. A $7.50 book was recently sent to this city for review and sold in this way.

There is a remedy, but it requires the co-operation of the publisher, the bookseller, and the newspaper. The first combination ought not to be difficult to obtain: the co-operation of the third party is by no means impossible. The newspaper in which we carry a daily advertisement on a yearly contract pledges itself not to offer review copies for sale so long as they carry our advertisement.

Let booksellers follow such a plan, and ask publishers to send review copies to such newspapers only and the evil will be greatly diminished, if not entirely abated.

A more difficult problem is presented in the case of the down town New York dealer, not a member of the American Booksellers' Association, who is soliciting the patronage of public libraries, and offering new books at discounts of from twenty-five to twenty-eight per cent, claiming that the same are review copies which he has by some means acquired in such quantities that he can supply all who favor him with their patronage.

This beats any case that we have seen referred to in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. What are we going to do about it?

ALBERT B. FIFIELD.

OBITUARY NOTES.

C. A. BURGHARDT, aged 73 years, who has conducted a book and stationery store on Oneida Street, Milwaukee, Wis., for nearly thirty-five years, died December 30, after a period of illness that followed several years of failing health.

DAVID F. WILLIAMSON, fifty-seven years old, head of the David F. Williamson Company, booksellers and stationers, of Buffalo, N.Y., died recently at his home in that city. Mr. Williamson had been ill for nearly two years, though of late he had seemed to show some improvement. His firm publishes law books.

JOHN ALEXANDER HILL, president of the Hill Publishing Company and the McGraw-Hill Book Co., died suddenly in his automobile on January 24, as he was on his way to his office. Death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Hill was born February 22, 1858, in Sandgate, Vermont. He entered the trade to which he was to devote his life at the age of fourteen, taking a position in a small printing office. He was made a foreman at the age of seventeen. His love for machinery took him in his twentieth year into railroading. In 1885 he returned to writing and publishing for a time to found the Daily Press at Pueblo, Col. He edited this paper for only a year, and then returned to the railroad, where he remained till 1887. During these years he had been a contributor to the American Machinist, and had written series of essays entitled "Jim Skeeve's Object Lessons," and "Stories of the Railroad," and "Progressive Examinations for Locomotive Engineers." The first two embodied some of his own experiences and were subsequently published in book form. The American Machinist finally called him to take the editorship. In 1891 Mr. Hill and Angus Sinclair bought another periodical, the Locomotive Engineer, and changed the name to Locomotive Engineering. In 1896 they bought the American Machinist, and in the following year Mr. Hill sold his interest in Locomotive Engineering to Mr. Sinclair. It was in 1902 that Mr. Hill bought Power and organized the Hill Publishing Company. Since that time the company has acquired the Engineering and Mining Journal, Engineering News, and established the Coal Age. Of these publications the American Machinist is published also in London and Berlin. Mr. Hill is credited with many achievements in the business of publishing technical journals. He adopted the system of publishing a circulation statement in each issue, and the standard magazine size for his publications, discontinued the acceptance of copies returned by news companies, established an advertisers' service department, discontinued exchange advertising, and sold display advertising on flexible contract permitting the advertiser to use pages or fractions of pages as he pleased. In addition he published a buyers' cyclopedia, and devised numerous improvements in printing machinery and practice.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

Photoplay Topics has suspended publication. Health and Temperance will henceforth be published under the title, Life and Health.

The Journal of Experimental Psychology is a new publication which is issued bimonthly.

FROM JANUARY, 1916, the English edition of The Atlantic Monthly will be published by Messrs. J. M. Dent & Sons, Ltd.

THE PERRY MASON COMPANY, publishers of The Youth's Companion, are now in their new building at Commonwealth Avenue and St. Paul Street, Boston. The building is of the mushroom type of concrete and steel construction, six stories in height, besides the basement and the sub-basement. Each floor has an area of 14,000 square feet.

American Defense is a new illustrated monthly, January being the first issue. Philip J. Roosevelt, a young relative of Theodore Roosevelt, is the editor. Among the contributors are the Hon. George von L. Meyer, Rupert Hughes, Major-General W. W. Wotherspoon, Cushing Stetson, Henry A. Wise Wood, C. S. Thompson and Henry Woodhouse. It is published by the American Defense Publishing Co., 305 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Ireland is the title of a new illustrated publication which made its first appearance under date of January 8th. Its object is thus set forth: "A weekly periodical, devoted to the interests of Ireland, to encouraging interest in Irish art, industries, music, literature and history, and more especially to supporting the Irish Parliamentary Party in restoring and preserving self-government in Ireland." It is published by the Ireland Publishing Co., 8 West 40th Street, New York City.

THE HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS this month will issue a new military publication called the Military Historian and Economist. The periodical is edited by Professor R. M. Johnston, a Harvard authority, and Captain A. L. Conger, of the United States army. The editors will present articles not only by military and naval experts in the United States, but also by experts in Europe. The advisory board of the magazine consists of Professor C. J. Bullock, Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, Major J. W. McAndrew, U. S. A.; Professor E. V. D. Robinson, J. H. Smith, and Professor O. M. W. Sprague.

A. C. G. HAMMESFAHR, of Collier's Weekly, retiring president of the Sphinx Club, the national periodical club, recited recently the following facts regarding periodical publishing in this country: "It gives you a clear idea of the extent of the periodical publishing business to know that during 1915 ninety American periodicals have had a circulation of over 45,000,000 copies each month, representing a total sale of weekly and monthly periodicals of over 540,000,000 copies a year. Turning from figures which show the extent of appreciation by magazine readers, it is equally interesting to know that in those same ninety periodicals the advertisers of this country invested in advertising to the amount, approximately, of $34,416,479. The great circulation of our periodicals indicates a large amount of money spent by the American people for their magazines, too. In this case we have data covering 131 periodicals of twelve different classifications and we figure that the amount of money spent by readers for them is $50,469,500. I believe that advertisers are now investing in the periodicals of this country no less than $35,000,000 a year in their selling work."

WITH THE FEBRUARY NUMBER the American Strand Magazine will be discontinued. This, it is announced, is due to the war, the ban recently put upon the exportation of all metals by the British Government having made it impossible to send over the plates from the English Strand, thereby causing the American edition to be entirely reset, and increasing the cost of production to such an amount as to be prohibitive in the eyes of the London publishers and owners. When he started the Strand in 1890 Sir George Newnes' great slogan was, "A picture on every page," and the Strand Magazine led the way of monthlies in the matter of illustrations for the text. Perhaps the most important incident in connection with the Strand Magazine was the "bringing out" of Conan Doyle and the making of "Sherlock Holmes." This character made his initial bow in "A Scandal in Bohemia," which appeared in the seventh number of the Strand. As early as 1892, when his boyish fame was at its height, Rudyard Kipling contributed "The Lost Legion," one of the best of his tales. It is stated that Wendell Phillips Dodge, the American editor has been approached by certain money interests in regard to purchasing the American Strand outright and arranging to obtain the best stories published in the English Strand, and republishing the magazine on a bigger basis with a more distinct American program.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"MRS. BELFAME," a mystery novel by Gertrude Atherton, will be published by the Fredrick A. Stokes Co. on February 25.

THE WILLIAMS BOOK STORES Co., of Boston, is offering publishers, binders and booksellers cash for remainder lots in any quantity.

ANYONE WHO INTENDS to run away to sea and be a whaleman should first read A. Hyatt Verrill's "The Real Story of a Whaler," which D. Appleton & Co. are issuing in February.

HARPER & BROS. are sending out with their February announcements a blotter bearing a calendar for the month and the titles of four of their leading February publications.

4,000,000 COPIES of "Hindenburg's March into London" have been sold in Germany at 2 marks. A translation by L. C. Redmond-Howard has just been published by John Long in England.

THE U. S. COURT OF CUSTOMS APPEALS has just refused the appeal of E. P. Dutton & Co. for the free entry of "Making of Modern England." The book was held to be not a textbook.

20 YEARS OR MORE after their first publication, the sales for the single month of December, 1915, of Kipling's "Jungle Book" and "Captains Courageous" amounted to more than 3000 copies.

IN REPORTING Samuel Hopkins Adams' talk at the last dinner of the New York Booksellers' League we spoke in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for January 22 of the Syndicate Trading Co.-Chicago Herald Scheme. This should of course have read Syndicate Publishing Co.-Chicago Herald Scheme.

"ANTHRACITE" by Scott Nearing has just been published by the John C. Winston Co. Dr. Nearing uses the private ownership of the anthracite coal fields to show the way in which consumers and workers may expect to fare at the hands of other monopolies of natural resources.

A NEW EDITION of Selma Lagerlöf's "From a Swedish Homestead," translated by Jessie Brochner, is announced by Doubleday, Page & Co. The second volume of "Jerusalem" will be issued as soon as possible after the publication of "The Emperor of Portugallia," upon which the translator is now at work.

I. T. T. LINCOLN, author of the "Revelations of an International Spy," just published by Robert M. McBride & Co., has escaped from the Raymond Street Prison in Brooklyn, where he wrote a part of his book and where he was confined on a forgery charge made by the British government.

FRANK FROEST, author of "The Grell Mystery," has all the inside information necessary to make his detective stories accurate as well as startling, for, until a year or so ago, he was superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Department of New Scotland Yard. "The Maelstrom," his new story, is a new Clode publication.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL instinct that is so strong in all of us can find expression in the record books that are so popular near commencement time. Dodge Publishing Company have a long line of these, including "A Record of My School Days," "A Record of My College Days," "My School Life," and "My Graduation," each published in two or more styles.

JOHN SHEPARD, JR., head of the Shepard-Norwell Co. department stores of Boston and Providence has come out strongly for the Stevens bill in an open letter to the press. "Personally, I cannot see one point that has been made wherein a first-class merchant is going to suffer," says Mr. Shepard. "I believe the best merchants throughout the United States, the reputable houses who want to do business squarely, are in favor of this bill."

AMY McLAREN, whose "Bawbee Jock" was a particular success, has written "The Heir of Duncarron," which the Putnams announce for February publication. The "heir" is a girl, whose heritage comes to her encumbered by the debts contracted during his lifetime by her spendthrift father. Her estate has been leased to another, and she comes to view her acres, feeling herself a stranger, and from this situation develops the love story.

THE POOREST INMATE of the Old Ladies' HOME is the heroine of a new Stokes novel, scheduled for February 5 publication. "Drusilla With a Million" tells what happened to that heroine when an astonishing legacy came to her. Harold Bindloss' "The Coast of Adventure," beginning with a rescue at sea, with all the typical Bindloss enthusiasm, and "The Efficient Secretary," a practical book, by Ellen Lane Spencer, for the woman with business ambition, will also come on the 5th.

THE WRITERS OF HISTORICAL ROMANCES are digging deep these days for interesting settings for their tales. "Beltane the Smith" went back to an England that had not yet dreamed of a Shakespeare, Mary Johnston revived the France of the eleventh century for "The Fortunes of Garin" and a book published to-day by Dodd, Mead & Co., "The Making and Breaking of Almansur" by Clarice M. Cresswell, goes back to the absorbing days of the Moors in Spain.

WE ARE NOT SUPERSTITIOUS, but were we a publisher we should be tempted to pick February 29, the rarest day on the calendar, for publication date of a big book of which we expected big things. Apparently, at least one publisher feels as we do, for George W. Jacobs & Co. have picked it for the day on which "The Golden Woman," the first by Ridgwell Cullum since his successful "The Way of the Strong," will be sent sliding down the ways.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. announces the publication of two new volumes in the Lippincott Farm Manual Series, "Productive Bee Keeping," by Frank C. Pellett, State Apiarist of Iowa, and "Productive Farm Crops," by E. S. Montgomery, Professor of Farm Crops, Cornell University. The American Poultry Association has directed the preparation of "Twenty Lessons on Poultry," by C. T. Patterson, an elementary treatise, which Lippincott will also publish.

SO DEFINITE is the field of the graduate and college record books that a list of possible customers in his town is the easiest thing in the world for the bookseller to procure. If he backs a little advertising with a simple window display—featuring perhaps the local school colors—he will doubtless find that any number of young people are eager to make the present last for ever inside book covers. These book covers, by the way, may be cloth, ooze or morocco, for Jordan & Company offer three styles of binding in their well-known line of High School, Graduate and College record books.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY have become Granville Barker's American publishers and on February 9th they will reissue in separate volumes three of his best plays, "The Marrying of Ann Leete," "The Voysey Inheritance" and "Waste." The same firm will supply "The Madras House" and "Anatol," and will also bring out a new edition of "Prunella," by Lawrence Housman and Mr. Barker. A new book from Mr. Barker's pen will be announced shortly. Little, Brown have also taken over from Dodd, Mead & Co. two of W. L. George's earlier novels, "The Making of an Englishman" and "Until the Day Break."

THE NEW YORK Evening Post started, a short while ago, a book supplement which appears with the Saturday issue of the paper. The supplement is half the size of the paper, and runs from eight to thirty-two pages. It contains book reviews, literary articles, illustrations, magazine news, a special department which will assist in the selection of books for special purposes such as Reading Lists, Club Papers, etc., notes of auction sales, lists of new books, etc. The articles are a special feature, discussing "Feminism in Fiction," "Influence of Public Upon Author and Publisher," "Books that One Boy Liked," and similar matters of general interest.

THE REILLY & BRITTON Co. has just closed a contract with Miss Maria Thompson Daviess, author of "The Melting of Molly," "Over Paradise Ridge," etc., for the publication on April 20 of her new novel, "The Daredevil." According to Miss Daviess it is "first of all, a striking love adventure, the scenes all being laid in Harpeth Valley" (the site of Mrs. Daviess' bungalow in the Tennessee hills). "The heroine is a French countess, a victim of the European war, who comes to this country and drifts into the valley. The story reverses the usual order of war romances in that it brings the heroine out of the adventures of the great war into still more striking love adventures in Harpeth Valley."

RESOLUTIONS adopted Jan. 12 at the monthly meeting of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, made strong protest against action which it is reported is now under consideration by the postal authorities toward a curtailment of the number of mail deliveries in the business districts of New York City. The meeting officially called attention to the facts that the total revenue of the New York Post Office was $29,488,518 in the year 1914; that the total expenses of the post office in New York was $10,686,996 in the same year; that the New York post office therefore produced a net profit to the Government of $18,801,531, the total revenue being realized amounting to over 10½ per cent of the total postal revenues for the whole of the United States in 1914.

THE COBURN PLAYERS are touring the country in the beautiful Chinese play, "The Yellow Jacket," by Hazelton and Benrimo which made such a stir in New York City some three years or so ago. For the convenience of booksellers who will want to take advantage of this opportunity to push the book, published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. and most attractively printed and illustrated, we print herewith the route of the Coburn Players: Feb. 1, St. Joseph, Mo.; 2, Lincoln, Nebraska; 3, 4, 5, Omaha, Nebraska; 7, Grinnell, Ia.; 8, Iowa City, Ia.; 9, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; 10, Cedar Falls, Ia.; 11, 12, Des Moines, Iowa; 13, Iowa Falls, Ia.; 15, Sioux City, Ia.; 16, Vermillion, S. D.; 17, Sioux Falls, S. D.; 18, Mitchell, S. D.; 19, Redfield, S. D.; 21, Aberdeen, S. D.; 22, Ellendale, N. D.; 23, Jamestown, N. D.; 24, Valley City, N. D.; 25, Fargo, N. D.; 26, Grand Forks, N. D.; 28, 29, and March 1, St. Paul, Minn.; 2, 4, Minneapolis, Minn.; 6-8, Duluth, Minn.; 9, Superior, 10, St. Cloud, Minn.; 11, Albert Lea, Minn.; 13, Winona; 14, La Crosse; 16, 18, Milwaukee.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ABILENE, TEX.—The Abilene Book & Stationery Co. has just been started.

ATLANTA, GA.—The John M. Miller Book Company has moved from 39 Marietta Street, where it has been located for thirty-four years, to 64 North Broad Street.

BOSTON, MASS.—The University Book Binding Company, publishers and book binders, has been incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts with a capital stock of $5,000. The incorporators are George S. Lewis, president; Edmund W. Walker, treasurer, and Enoch L. Colby.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—A. D. Matthews Sons,

Inc., at Fulton street and Gallatin place, a department store having a book department, has discontinued business. The J. B. Greenhut Company, of Manhattan, has purchased the entire stock.

CHAMBERSBURG, PA.—The Howard Yeager book store will, on April 1, move to the old post office building, which will be remodeled. The new room will be 25 x 60 feet.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—Fire completely destroyed the stock and building of the U. of I. Supply Store—generally known as the Co-Op—Sunday afternoon and night January 16th. Only such records as were in the safes, and near windows or doors were saved. The store is badly in need of catalogues and requests that all publishers and firms that make or wholesale supplies to college book and supply stores forward their catalogs and discount sheets. The store is located at present at 606-608 S. Sixth street. A new building will go up at once on the old site, facing the University of Illinois and in the summer the firm hopes to move into one of the finest college stores in the country.

GREENVILLE, TEX.—The Greenville Book & Stationery Co. has filed a petition in bankruptcy.

MONTICELLO, N. Y.—J. T. Heath, dealer in books, stationery and cigars, is succeeded by E. D. Billingham.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Bubier Publishing Co., formerly of Lynn, Mass., has removed its offices to 33 West 42d Street, this city.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Associated Blue Book Publications, a corporation publishing touring, road, and guide books; maps, charts, information, has incorporated for $250,000; Incorporators: H. M. Swetland, M. Holtz, E. R. Mixer, 239 West 39th Street.

NORFOLK, VA.—A meeting of the creditors of Hesslim Bros. & Co. has been called.

SHAWNEE, OKLA.—Yunt's Book Shop is reported to be in financial difficulties.

As an idler on life's highway, Aubrey Derringham dropped into a courtroom and saw how fierce a struggle things can be. Thus, for the sake of a girl, in blind obedience to her entreaties, this possible peer of the realm finds himself not only in love but in a tight corner with the risk of criminal prosecution as an accessory after the fact. A young chap is serving sentence for his brother's crime. Renée, the wife of the real forger, and Derringham help Geoffrey to escape. Renée's marriage has been a tragedy. Her husband's death comes at the time of Geoffrey's escape. Derringham thinks Renée loves Geoffrey, but finds that he himself is to play the first rôle in her happiness.

Hunt, Violet, and Hueffer, Ford Madox. Zeppelin nights; a London entertainment. N. Y., J: Lane. 307 p. D $1.25 n.

Serapion was in love with the young widow, Mrs. Candour Viola. He and a little coterie of authors used to gather at her home in London on "Zeppelin nights." To relieve the tension and pass the time waiting for the raids the stories embracing many periods of English history were told. The effect of the war upon Serapion and the other characters binds the tales together.

Wise, Jennings Cropper. Empire and armament; the evolution of American imperialism and the problem of national defense. N. Y., Putnam. c. '15 12+352 p. (4 p. bibl.) D $1.50 n.

Surveys the political doctrines which, step by step led to an aggressive national expansion; and shows that between imperialism, with all its dangers, and militarism, there exists no essential connection. Stresses the fact that the American people believe that, because they are not militaristic, they are not aggressive or militant in their dealings as a nation with the world. In view of this national trait, author makes a strong plea for adequate national defence.

Woodhull, Maxwell Van Zandt. West Point in our next war; the only way to create and to maintain an army. N. Y., Putnam. c. '15 17+266 p. D $1.25 n.

Points out that the day of the volunteer soldier has passed, since rapidity of mobilization after declaration of war, gives the nation prepared the opportunity to strike the other with crushing effect. Advocates conscription as the only way to create and to maintain an army. Proposes an active army for the United States, always with the colors, of 200,000 men, and a reserve of 800,000 men, as the irreducible minimum for the national defence; and the expansion and re-organization of the Military Academy, with the creation of a corps of cadets of 3600 men, as the only means of providing educated officers to command these armies. Author was late Lieutenant-Colonel and Assistant Adjutant-General 15th Army Corps and Army of the Tennessee.

Eighth page.....	4 00
One-sixteenth page.....	2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Unspecified wants, reprinted matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

ONE OF THE BOOKS

Which we recently manufactured complete was the "Anthology of Magazine Verse" for Gomme and Marshall.

Concerning this book the New York Times Book Review of January 9th has the following very flattering comment:

"And if the editor of the Anthology deserves praise for the work of his brain and hand, it would seem only fair to add that he has been ably seconded by the hand and brain of his publisher. A more tasteful and beautiful volume than the 'Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1915' would be hard to find—certainly at the very modest price asked for it."
